Interactive comment on “A comprehensive estimate for loss of atmospheric carbon tetrachloride (CCl\textsubscript{4}) to the ocean” by J. H. Butler et al.

J. H. Butler et al.

james.h.butler@noaa.gov

Received and published: 3 August 2016

Figure 8. Various wind speed relationships for the air sea exchange velocity (Kw,660) determined in previous studies. Curves from each of these studies were normalized to CO\textsubscript{2}, but as shown here, have been adjusted to represent CCl\textsubscript{4} according to its Schmidt number, which, a function of viscosity of the medium and diffusivity of the gas, is largely a function of sea surface temperature.

Interactive comment on Atmos. Chem. Phys. Discuss., doi:10.5194/acp-2016-311, 2016.

Fig. 1.